

I am very concerned about the FCC's attempt to repeal or revamp laws prohibiting the same company from owning both a newspaper and TV station in the same geographic area and laws limiting the percent of the national audience that a single cable company can reach. Our country has already gone too far in concentrating media ownership in the hands of a few media giants. Any further deregulation will seriously undermine the freedom of the press and free speech in this country; stifle debate about issues of critical public interest; and limit the voices of all Americans. The FCC needs to protect the freedoms and interests of all Americans; not just the prerogatives of the wealthiest media moguls and corporations.
